

A survey about help with travel for children and young people in education or training

Supporting children and young people with SEND to learn to travel independently helps them to take part in education, employment and leisure activities in their community

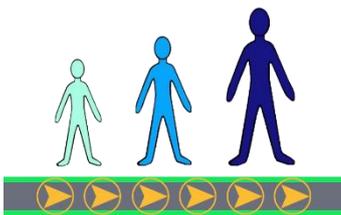

This policy covers travel arrangements for

- children and young people aged 5 to 16

- young people with complex special educational needs and disabilities up to the age of 25, while they remain in education or training

We want our decisions to be fair and to support independence by giving children and young people the life skills they need as they prepare for adulthood

We have made this survey so you can tell us what you think about our policy

Having a 0-25 policy

Our current policy covers three different age groups

- school age children
- young adults aged 16-18 and
- learners aged 19+

Do you agree that it is better to have one policy that describes the help available for 0-25 year olds rather than separate policies for each age group?

Yes, I agree

No, I disagree

I'm not sure

A simplified policy

We have made our policy shorter and easier to understand

Do you think it helps to have a shorter, clearer policy with more detailed information available separately?

Yes, I agree

Travel training

We want to support children and young people to do be as independent as possible when they grow up

This will help them have the best possible quality of life as an adult

To do this we think most disabled young people should be offered travel training

We know that this will depend on your needs and abilities

Independent travel training would never be done without the agreement of your parents or guardians

We work with families, schools and colleges to find out which children could benefit from travel training

While a child is being assessed for independent travel training and receiving the training, they will continue to get the help with travel that they get at the moment

Do you agree that, as part of their annual review, children and young people who get help with their travel should be considered for independent travel training? We would only do this where it feels appropriate

Yes, I agree

No, I disagree

I'm not sure

Personal transport budgets

We want to give personal transport budgets to more people

Personal transport budgets can help families have more control over their travel arrangements

Families can organise transport in whatever way they feel is best for their child and their situation

This could include using the personal transport budget to

- pay for childcare for a brother or sister while a parent takes you to school or college

- enable family or friends to take you to school or college

Do you agree that a personal transport budget could work well for some families?

Yes, I agree

No, I disagree

I'm not sure
